New Cheers:	SOH CAH TOA:  UCSD, let me your waves!  SOH CAH TOA! sine, cosine, tangeent ~ (body roll while saying tangent) Pump it Up (Repeat after the Leader):  PUMP, PUMP, PUMP it up (repeat)  Pump that Triton spirit up (repeat)  KEEP, KEEP, KEEP it up (repeat)  Keep that Triton spirit up (repeat)  FIRE, FIRE, FIRE it up (repeat)  Fire that Triton spirit up (repeat)  EVERYONE: GOOOOOO Tritons

FTC Skit	Brainstormed concept: One person wins a golden ticket and takes their friends on a road trip to the Chocolate Factory. The main character loses the three tenants (service, leadership, and fellowship) on the way there in various ways. Each time they lose a tenant, a ticket/piece of the golden ticket flies out the window. When they finally get there, Willy Wonka tells them a golden ticket is required for entrance. The main character has to go back and fix his mistakes in order to gather the pieces of his golden ticket. They collect all the pieces, and go into the factory. Someone runs in and drinks from the chocolate river, and says, “mmm this chocolate river is really good!” Then Willy Wonka (or someone else) says, “...that’s not chocolate...” Music cues, Oompa Loompas come out, they dance to the Oompa Loompa techno remix, and escorts the person out. End. Ideas for how the main character loses the tenants so far:  Service: they pass a hitchhiker asking for a ride, hit and run, help someone whose car broke down on the freeway, littering while driving ...; later pick up the hitchhiker or help the person with their car or picks up the trash they threw out the window?  Leadership: doesn’t ask for directions, gets the car lost, everyone takes turns driving but this person doesn’t; they later drive  Fellowship: getting into a fight with the people in the car, doesn’t play car games like would you rather...; they later ----? Help with ideas if you have any!
